SUBJECT: Job Description and Justification to Accompany Recommendation for Promotion of Major Edwin F. Black

TO : CO, Hq & Hq Detachment, OSS, European T of Opns

1. On 22 November 1943, Major Black was assigned as Deputy to the Chief of the SO Planning Section at Special Force Headquarters. In this capacity, he assisted in the preparation of all forward operational plans for the development, control and employment of Resistance Groups within the SHAEF sphere. In addition, Major Black also assisted in maintaining liaison with Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Forces, Twelfth Army Group and the First and Third U. S. Armies. At this time, Major Black was actively engaged in coordinating SOE/SO facilities with the military plans and projects of the above-mentioned headquarters. He was also concerned with the preparation of annexes to be included in the Joint Operations Plans of U. S. Forces for operation "OVERLORD". These annexes outlined the types and intensities of activities which would be directed by Resistance Groups after D-Day, their control, including SOE/SO directly controlled groups and allied French groups, and the function and composition of the SO Detachments. He aided the A.C. of S, G-3, SHAEF, in the preparation of letters pointing out to Army Group and Armies concerned that there would be attached to them SO Detachments which would serve as a source of specific and general information for overall plans for use of Resistance Groups. During this period, Major Black was repeatedly recommended for promotion by his Chief because of the superior performance of his duties but, due to lack of promotional vacancies, it was impossible to effect his promotion at that time.

2. On 7 August 1944, when the Etat Major des Forces Francaises de l'Interieur (a tripartite organization composed of American, British and French) was set up, Major Black continued as Deputy Chief of the American Planning and Liaison Section, and in this capacity on 6 September 1944 was sent on temporary duty with SHAEF (Forward) and was charged with the following responsibilities:

(SR QF)

(a) Maintain liaison between EMFFI and the appropriate Sections of SHAEF (Forward) on all matters pertaining to the FFI, working closely with the Ops "C" Sub-Section, G-3 Division, SHAEF, on operational subjects.

(b) Maintain such liaison as is required between SHAEF, EMFFI in London and General Koenig's headquarters in Paris.

(c) Maintain up-to-date documentation concerning all FFI activities and prepare such staff studies relative to the FFI as might be required.

(d) Assist such members of the FFI as might be required to visit SHAEF in contacting the appropriate Section with that headquarters and in carrying out their missions.

(e) Perform such additional duties as might be required by SHAEF or EMFFI.

3. Since 28 October 1944 Major Black has served as Chief, SO Branch, Paris, and has discharged his duties in a superior manner.

4. From the foregoing, it is apparent that, though Major Black has successively occupied several positions meriting the grade of Lt Colonel and has discharged his duties in a superior manner, he has not, in recent times, held a position for the requisite three months. This circumstance has been entirely incident to the convenience of this Branch. It is believed that an unfavorable consideration of this recommendation on the basis of insufficient time in his current assignment would unduly penalize the officer.

Dear Mr. Gamble,

Am forwarding herewith (by the hand of Lt. Col. Barding) my application to attend an European studies course which is being conducted by the War Department. Lt. Col. Subling has no objection to this application.

As it is past the deadline for submitting these applications thru the USFET channels, I am sending it direct to OSS Washington so that they can forward it to the War Department. This procedure was discussed with the authorities here at USFET who said that as our OSS units in Europe were considered on D/S from the Washington Hq. it would be quite proper to send my application to Washington thru OSS channels for submission to the War Dept there.

I would greatly appreciate it if OSS, Washington would submit it to the War Department with a favorable 1st endorsement, as I am extremely anxious to get to this school and continue my studies in current European affairs.

I do not know what the deadline for these applications will be in the States, but I understand the next European studies course begins about 22 October, 45 at Princeton Univ. Therefore I would certainly appreciate it if you would give this application your personal attention and see that it is forwarded to the War Dept as soon as possible (before 1 Oct would be best as I don't know what my status will be after that date)

With kindest personal regards, I am

yours sincerely,
Edwin F. Black

INTEROFFICE MEMO

13 September 1945

TO: All Personnel

All of you who served with the Office of Strategic Services were required to share responsibility for the security of its operations and its personnel. Many of you signed an oath that you would not disclose information gained by reason of your employment or assignment to this agency.

You were asked to do so because you were entrusted with highly classified information which pertained to the war against our enemies. OSS maintained an exceptional standard of security. You are to be congratulated on the manner in which you discharged your obligations.

With the defeat of our enemies, the work of this organization is substantially completed. Accordingly, many of the reasons for stringent security obligations have ceased to exist. It is the purpose of this memorandum to modify these obligations.

Specifically, you are hereby officially advised that verbal discussion, in general terms, of the following war time activities of OSS is now authorized:

Permitted Disclosures

It may be said that OSS personnel performed special reconnaissance activities behind enemy lines and assisted in the training and supplying of resistance and partisan groups, thereby enabling them effectively to support the Allied Armies. The establishment of training areas, supply bases and transportation units, both in this country and overseas, were necessary to accomplish these objectives.

In the field of intelligence operations, it may be indicated that OSS personnel engaged in the collection, analysis and dissemination of information affecting all phases of enemy and enemy-occupied countries -- military, economic, political and geographical. It may be said that OSS agents, both American and foreign, in uniform and in civilian clothes, penetrated enemy-held territory in order to obtain this information. Armies, captured documents of great military and economic value to the Allied cause. It may also be said that OSS personnel were assigned to the task of collecting and analyzing information on individuals who were engaged in subversive or intelligence operations on behalf of the enemy.

It is permissible to explain that there were recruited, for both these major functions, civilian and military experts of varied and diverse backgrounds. Close liaison was maintained with other American and Allied agencies and departments engaged in similar activities.

A large staff of administrative, service and clerical personnel was required to implement these activities. Special branches engaged in experimentation and development of arms and equipment, map preparation, reproduction, communications, psychological warfare studies, photography and medical services, each of which made vital contributions to the over-all program.

Accordingly, (but subject to the limitations outlined below) your own work with the Office of Strategic Services may now be disclosed, orally, to your family and your friends. However, in spite of the fact that we have won total victory over our enemies, there remain certain facts which are not and should not become known to foreign governments. There are others which would cause embarrassment and danger to our own government, our allies, and to certain of our brave and courageous associates who hastened the hour of victory. In this connection it is particularly important that the identity of operational personnel should not be disclosed unless they have been publicly mentioned as being connected with this organization. Accordingly, there shall be no mention whatsoever of any of the following:

Forbidden Disclosures

1. Any activity of OSS other than that set forth under the permitted disclosures described above.
2. Any information of any kind from OSS or other sources (except the generalized OSS information described above) which remains classified in the files of OSS, or, if from another originating agency, in the files of that agency.
3. Any details of operations including for example, any special techniques, devices, methods or identity of personnel employed in clandestine or cover operations.
4. Any reference of any kind or character, as to the name, organization, function or personnel of any of the counterparts of OSS in allied governments.

c. Detailed narrative of services for which this award is recommended:

In order to carry out the directives of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Special Operations Branch of the Office of Strategic Services was faced with planning, organizing, and effecting a type of warfare entirely new on the part of the Armed Forces of the United States and for which no American precedents were available.

The work charged to this organization consisted principally of organizing of the headquarters and headquarters staff; acquiring, organizing, equipping, staffing and operating a Packing Station for the receipt, storage, packing and dispatch of supplies and equipment to be parachuted into enemy occupied territory for use by resistance groups, including also a parachute packing, repair and modification shop; procurement and training of staffs to accompany the armies into the field to assure the most effective coordination of the activities of resistance groups; procurement, training and infiltration of agents into enemy and enemy occupied territory for the purpose of organizing, equipping, training and directing the activities of resistance groups, setting up escape lines for the crews of allied aircraft shot down by the enemy or forced down in enemy occupied territory, directing acts of sabotage, and directing guerilla warfare activities against the enemy; the procurement, training and dispatch after D-Day into enemy territory of specially selected and highly trained three man teams (Jedburghs) and Operational Groups to assume active leadership of resistance groups.

On 26 December 1943, Major Black was assigned as Deputy Chief, Planning Section, Special Operations Branch, Office of Strategic Services, and as Liaison Officer at Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Forces, for matters pertaining to the organization, equipping and operations of Resistance Forces in France. In this position he displayed outstanding judgment, initiative, and executive ability in assisting in the formulation of plans for American assistance in the conduct of sabotage and guerilla warfare activities by French Resistance Forces and in coordinating such plans with the military plans of Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Forces. To his constant zeal, complete application to duty and keen insight into the practical aspects and possibilities of the use of resistance forces, a great deal of the credit is due for the success achieved by the Special Operations Branch.

d. Detailed narrative of services for which this award is recommended:

On 1 September 1944 Lieutenant Bloch was parachuted into the Allier Department of France for duty with one of the Maquis battalions in that Department. In the course of his work, he displayed outstanding initiative and resourcefulness particularly in connection with the surrender of nineteen thousand Germans in this sector.

This column of German soldiers passed through Sannois, fully armed. It was reported that they had already concluded an armistice with the U. S. Third Army, the terms of which permitted them to retain their arms until they had reached the Loire. This armistice was extremely unpopular with the Maquis who wanted the Germans to surrender to them and they did not understand why they were allowed to keep their arms. Most of them wanted to continue the fight.

Lieutenant Bloch, realizing the serious consequences if fighting were to recommence, talked to the men at length and succeeded in making them understand that the most intelligent course was not to indulge in personal vengeance on the German soldiers but to get them out of France altogether and insure an early peace for France. Thus a fresh outbreak of hostilities, which would not only have nullified the existing armistice but would also have caused many unnecessary deaths, was averted by the intelligent action of Lieutenant Bloch.

In all other respects, the mission was carried out intelligently and effectively and Lieutenant Bloch returned to duty with his organization on 19 September 1944. His conduct throughout this mission was at all times such as to reflect great credit upon himself and the armed forces of the United States.

e. Proposed Citation:

During this period Lieutenant Bloch served with a Maquis battalion in the Allier Department of France. On one occasion, displaying great initiative and resourcefulness, Lieutenant Bloch averted an attack by the Maquis on approximately 19,000 Germans who were passing, fully armed, through Sannois, France, under armistice terms which permitted them to retain their arms until they reached the Loire where they were surrendering to American Forces.
